Name: Perry Sherman, Ph.D.

One sentence that describes me and my writing: A clinical psychologist and Christian apologist who helps believers understand why the people they love resist the gospel — and what to do about it.

Brief bio: Perry Sherman, Ph.D. is a clinical psychologist with 27 years of practice, a Christian apologist trained under John Warwick Montgomery, and the author of God Knew (2026). He is a founder of East Coast Men at the Cross and writes at the intersection of evidential apologetics and depth psychology.

Why I write: Felt compelled to pass on what I've learned in 48 years defending the faith with evidence and 30 years as a psychologist — because the heart usually drives the head, even when we think the head is in charge.

I write:

Nonfiction: ☐ articles ☐ personal experience stories ☐ devotions ☒ books

My audience ☒ Christians ☒ general public ☒ women ☒ men ☐ teens ☐ children

I'm currently working on: Heart First: Why People Reject Even a Compelling Case for Christ — a book for apologists and ministry workers on the emotional and relational barriers that keep people from faith, even when the evidence is strong.

My greatest joy and/or struggle in writing is: Greatest Joy is in facilitating transformation in men, women and couples, in groups and in person. Greatest struggle is with disappointment and self-confidence.

I'd like to meet writers who: Are working at the intersection of faith, psychology, or pastoral ministry — especially anyone writing for men or for the apologetics audience.
